The Daily Dot called it the first time anyone has successfully made a video loop that rivals the length of a normal video, noting that it was created in three days. According to the website, most YouTube users tend to prefer music videos, so creating video loops that are similar to the length of music videos has proven to be a challenge. Since its launch in February, it has received over 10 million views. References External links Category:YouTube Category:Technology websites Category:Free-content websites f3e1b3768c
