bundled with Metastock Pro, but the new formula can be downloaded separately for individual use and even be integrated into custom or predefined. Ripple was able to get their head over the hump and start getting some momentum in the crypto space once again, where it has been for a while now. They had been down for a while, but after the announcement of Ripple's partnership with MoneyGram, the Ripple price has started to show some great momentum. Since the beginning of February, Ripple has been steadily increasing in value, and we saw the digital asset achieve an all-time high in the crypto market cap rankings. According to CoinMarketCap, Ripple has had a market capitalization of $10,861,636,172, and the top cryptocurrency is currently ranked ninth in the market. Looking at the global market cap of all digital assets, Ripple holds the ninth position, and is also the highest position held by a Ripple company. Ripple Price The Ripple price has increased a total of 8% since the beginning of the month. Since the beginning of February, the Ripple price has increased from $0.22 to $0.29 and currently sits at $0.27. This shows that Ripple has picked up speed as it prepares for the launch of XRP 2.0. Ripple's XRP 2.0 will be launching next week, and from a previous announcement by Ripple, we can expect the Ripple price to rise by at least 70% following the launch. With this change, XRP holders will benefit greatly as they will be able to maximize their XRP holdings. What Is Next For Ripple? Ripple's XRP 2.0 is going to be launching in about two weeks, and it is one of the biggest updates that XRP holders can be excited about.

Most of the time, with updates to the blockchain protocol, XRP holders are negatively affected. This is because Ripple uses XRP as a proprietary transaction currency, so changes to the XRP blockchain can have huge effects. However, this time, Ripple is planning to fix this by doubling the number of XRP held by a single address. Ripple has already stated that XRP holders will benefit greatly from this change, and this will be the catalyst for an increase in the Ripple price following its launch. With the start of the next week, Ripple has 2d92ce491b
