Q: Problem to push a variable to app.config in c# I'm trying to build an application in Visual C# 2005, but this is my first one, I'm trying to deploy it in a standalone way. I created a Windows Service and added the executable with a command line parameter, the executable execute a another application and the destination is the App.config file of the first application. This is the command line parameter I'm adding: /D c:\Projects\Project X\ProjectXService.exe /config c:\Projects\Project X\bin\Release\Project X.exe The problem is that when I run it and I look in the App.config file of the second application, I don't see a new section. If I put the "customer" value directly in the App.config file of the second application, then it works. I guess the issue is in the variable I'm trying to push to the App.config file. How can I do that? Thanks A: You can't update the existing configuration file. That would cause a duplication of configuration. Instead, you should be able to create a separate file in the same directory as your exe and use that to supply your configuration. You should be able to get the path to your app.config file using System.Configuration.ConfigurationManager.AppSettings package terraform import ("fmt") // ValidateCountValidator is a GraphValidateAttr validator that verifies // the _count_ attribute's value is positive. type ValidateCountValidator struct { Name string // Name for error message, not used Config *ResourceConfig // This validator is configurable SchemaVersion int
