I'm looking for hard mathematical puzzles. What's the hardest to solve? Please include the difficulty level. Thank you in advance. A: Pretty much anything one can think up of which has a solution is an impossible puzzle! In my opinion, the hardest mathematical puzzle is one whose solution requires knowledge of the most impressive mathematical subjects and techniques. For example, it might be to solve a problem which was once difficult (but is now much easier) using one of the best known techniques in the most elegant and clear language. A: One of the very best that I know of is the "Praying Mantis" puzzle of Georg Cantor. It was published in the German Mathematical Monthly: There are a number of very good mathematical puzzles available online. The Turing machine puzzle is very difficult and is not on the Wikipedia page. If you are serious about this sort of puzzle please give it a look. A: This is a nice example: The answer is 1653.5. and I only did that, because I want to impress people with my mathematical knowledge. Nike Air Max 1 "St
